Code of Professional Conduct 2011 AOBA NATIONAL SHOW National Western Complex May 19-22, 2011

The Alpaca Owners and Breeders Association (AOBA) aspires to host a conference that will be an enjoyable and meaningful experience for everyone in attendance. With the overall scope of the conference in mind, we ask all AOBA members and vendors to agree to a code of conduct designed to encourage ethical and socially responsible practices on behalf of all conference volunteers, exhibitors and vendors, hereinafter referred to collectively as “Attendees.”

Attendees will strive to work smoothly with others and help integrate their efforts into the conference as a whole.

Attendees will make their best effort to communicate their needs clearly, concisely and without anger or crude, unacceptable language. Physical abuse, the threat of physical abuse, verbal abuse or other forms of intimidation is prohibited.

Vendors will strive to deliver products that are free of defects, adheres to standards, is of a professional quality and works as expected and agreed upon. Vendor will not knowingly misrepresent facts regarding their products and will be easy to do business with.

Violators will be subject to immediate dismissal from the conference with no refunds of fees available and potentially be subject to being barred from future conference attendance.

This Code is intended as an instrument for productive changes. Further recommendations for refinements are welcomed and encouraged.

To report violations, please contact the Conference Manager, Andrea Harrington at conference@aobamail.com
